BIG PICTURE LIVING AND AMERICAN COLLEGE OF LIFESTYLE MEDICINE INVITE YOU TO AN ADVISORY SERIES ON

HEALTH INEQUITIES & EDUCATION

A Seat at the Table

with your hosts:
Dr. Danique Dolly, Big Picture Learning
Dr. Marsha-Gail Davis, American College of Lifestyle Medicine

A new year often brings with it resolutions of living a happier, healthier life. Those of us in education know that achieving this is essential to creating a happier, healthier learning environment. But we also know that this is easier said than done in some communities. To that end, Big Picture Living - an initiative of Big Picture Learning - and HEAL (Health Equity Achieved through Lifestyle Medicine) - an initiative of American College of Lifestyle Medicine - invite you to attend a critically important, three-part conversation on equity, education and the well-being of our future generations.

Through this series, BPL and HEAL will lead an effort to bridge the gap between different societal sectors; including medicine, education and media; to spur further discussion around the problem around health inequity and the solutions inside and around education designed to address it. Please join us.

Danique Dolly has a love for learning and values students being at the very center of their education; families, too! Danique believes in empowering students and families and has worked on doing so throughout his career as an educator. A quiet leader who loves to write, Danique has served as a start-up school teacher, start-up school principal, a school leadership coach, and partner in education and leadership endeavors. His work touches upon school transformation through leadership development, innovation and implementation for progressive systems and schools. Danique is from the Bronx and East Harlem. He's a graduate of Morehouse College, Brown University and, more recently, earned a doctorate in education leadership from Harvard University.

Marsha-Gail Davis, MD, is a primary care interest and preventionist. Originally from the island of Jamaica, she received her MD from the University of California, San Diego, and completed her residency in the Yale Primary Care Residency Program. At ACLM, in addition to serving on the Board as Young Director, Dr. Davis is a leader of the Health Equity Through Lifestyle Medicine (HEAL) initiative. She believes prevention is the best treatment for many diseases, particularly chronic diseases such as diabetes, heart disease, high blood pressure and obesity. Her goal is to make prevention the priority and to make prevention popular.
