Homeschool Legal Co-op:

Membership helps these guys look out for us at state and national level and gets you quick access to a lawyer familiar with your local homeschool laws for questions, and defense if you run into problems:

Umbrella Schools:

This is how most homeschoolers report grades and attendance in TN. They handle withdrawing you from your public school after you are registered with them. This is not your actual school, some offer online classes, and curriculum advisors, but they are primarily a reporting tool to keep you legal. They are a middle man that will ensure your attendance and grades are filed in compliance with TN requirements.

- Honor School of Tennessee- The least expensive “bare bones” option:

Five Flavors of School & Homeschool

The Flavors...

- Traditional (Public School, Private School, Homeschool)

A separate textbook and/or workbook for each subject.

Read the information, answer the questions (multiple choice, T/F, short answer).

Remember the facts until the test.

"Know"

- Classical (Private School, Homeschool)

Based on the Trivium

Grammar Stage (ages 6–10): absorb and memorize facts

Dialectic Stage (ages 10–12): emphasize logic and why's behind facts

Rhetoric Stage (ages 13–18): add persuasive use of language

"Think"

- Charlotte Mason (Homeschool)

Living books instead of textbooks

Narration instead of questioning

Emphasizes ideas over dry facts

A wide variety of subjects; a broad curriculum – www.simplycharlottemason.com

"Grow"

- Unit Studies

Arranges all subjects around a common theme

Usually lots of hands-on projects

"Do"

- Unschooling

Child-directed

No set curriculum or agenda

"Live"

Find Your Favorite

If you . . .

- are concerned about keeping lock-step with the local school system (T)
- don't necessarily want a plan; prefer to be spontaneous (N)
- place great emphasis on having facts memorized (T, C)
- love hands-on projects and activities and don't mind spending the time to prepare them (U)
- think the teacher should be the fountain-head of all knowledge (T, C, U)
- want school to be rigorous and challenging (C)
- don't want to be different (T, C, U)
- love the idea of learning from good literature and books that make the subject come alive (L)
- want to use natural, gentle methods while holding them to a high standard (L)
- like having the child decide what to learn and when (N)
- want to linger with art, nature, handicrafts, music, and more (L, N)
- want to teach the way you were taught; not have to put forth the effort of decision (T)
- believe that true education comes from a personal relation with what is being studied, not just recognition (L, N)
- want your children to learn how to self-educate (L, N)
- live and die by standardized test scores (T, C)
- want to teach all your children together for as many subjects as possible (L, U)
- want each child to be on his or her own separate track for everything (T, C, N)
- want something that will work for a special needs child (any)
- something that will work well for a large family (any)
- something that will work well for an only child (any)
- need to tuck homeschooling around your work schedule (any)
- need something your spouse or the grandparents can do parts of (any, depending on the spouse or grandparent)
- want your child to be prepared to do well in college (any)
- want your child to be prepared to do well in adult life (any)
- want to emphasize good character development and Biblical discipleship (any)

T = Traditional

C = Classical

L = Charlotte Mason

U = Unit Studies

N = Unschooling

Different publishers cater to different flavors of homeschooling.

Choosing Curriculum

You can . . .

- Get it to-go.
- Put together ready-made components.
- Make all of it from scratch.

Read the labels!

- Is it a good fit for this season of life?
- Does it help you reach your goals?
- Does it help you meet legal requirements?
- Does it agree with your personal standards?

Using Curriculum

- Teach the child, not the curriculum.
- Make the curriculum your servant, not your master.
- You have freedom to change if something isn't working.
- Curriculum is not a magic bullet.
