HEAR FROM OUR CUSTOMERS

“ We have used the Paraeducator Online Training for over 300 paras so that they meet the ESEA hiring requirements. The ease of the program and the depth and rigor of the information are very much appreciated. I can assure administrators that the paras have completed relevant and rigorous content for their positions. ”

—Melissa Moe, Educational Consultant, CESA #11

“ The Paraeducator Online Training has introduced a robust amount of topics to develop the knowledge base of the Paraprofessionals serving our students in Decatur Public School District #61 in Decatur, IL. Feedback from our Paraprofessionals on the learning content has been characterized as excellent, informative, and comprehensive. ”

—Travis Friedrich, Assistant Director of Special Education, Macon-Piatt Special Education

“ The program allows our paraeducators to create their own custom training plan each year based on what they need to learn for their specific job and type of student they are working with. Ease of use is important as well for these staff members. We also use the assessment tool to highly qualify our paraeducators which in the past cost them over $100 to be tested by an outside organization. The fact that it is included in our yearly rate is great for them. ”

—Tracey Ker, Director of HR, South Eastern School District

Four Strategies to Counter Pandemic Related Behavior Challenges

There are still students who are struggling in response to behavior expectations, peer interactions, and school routines this fall. Students who experienced school last year primarily in remote learning settings lived by a different set of behavior expectations than are typical. . .

Acceleration, Tutoring, or Intervention: When to Choose Which Approach

When school opened this fall the unevenness in learning gains from the past year was on everyone's mind. "Catching students up" academically along with attending to their social and emotional needs were highest priorities. Now several months into the year. . .
